

Programme Management – Masterclass Series (2 days)

Learn how to master massive transformational change

Programme Management enables organizations to deliver large scale transformational and strategic change through multiple projects. A programme is more than a large project and requires practices, techniques and leadership skills that are not normally associated with project management.

Spend two very practical, classroom or virtual classroom, days equipping yourself with expert level knowledge to apply programme management to your large-scale change initiatives within your portfolio of projects.

WHAT IS

Programme management provides you with a framework for delivering business benefits from major change, while addressing the need for sensible governance and control over multiple projects, a massive budget and numerous resources.

A programme is made up of a set of projects (agile and/or waterfall) and other activities and is governed by a programme organization led by a programme director. A programme must deliver against defined strategic level objectives, must enable benefit realization and a substantial change in the business.

A programme can only do well if the projects within it succeed. The concept of a programme is that it should be more than the 'sum of its parts'. In other words, with Programme Management the co-ordinated projects will deliver benefits more timeously, optimise resources, reduce risk, invoke successful change, and contribute to the strategic goals.

Snap Tech's PROGRAMME MANAGEMENT MASTERCLASS is a facilitated, interactive engagement structured around principles, techniques and practices upon which successful programme management depends.
